Dear colleagues,

Greetings from the University of Macerata (Italy)!

I'm writing this email just to let you know that there is a new great Master in our University.

I would like to promote it and to share with you the information.

Below the details.

Applications are now open for the online Master of Arts in Accessibility to Media, Arts and Culture (AMAC) promoted by the University of Macerata (Italy). The deadline to apply is 15 March 2024, at 1:00 p.m. CET.

AMAC will be delivered entirely online, with special events held both online and on site, as an option. The programme is set to run from April 2024 to January 2025. The primary language of instruction is English. For practical sessions only, students will have the option to choose between two languages: Italian and English. This choice can be specified during the application process.

AMAC offers comprehensive training with an international perspective, preparing students for a range of sectors that require accessibility expertise. The curriculum spans six modules, encompassing a broad spectrum of subjects such as accessibility studies, disability studies, legislation and standards, intralingual subtitling, interlingual subtitling, audio description of audiovisual products, access to museums and cultural heritage, easy-to-read and plain language, audio description for cultural heritage and tourism, multisensory services for museums, surtitling, audio description and audio introduction for live events, multisensory tours and workshops for live events, sign language interpreting for the media and the arts (either Italian Sign Language or American Sign Language).

A key component of AMAC is a 60-hour module which provides an invaluable chance to interact with and learn from industry professionals. Additionally, the course includes a 300-hour work placement or project work, offering hands-on experience in the field.

Oggetto: Supporto per la promozione internazionale del Master di primo livello AMAC scrivo su indicazione della collega Di Giovanni, con la quale insieme alla collega Raffi dirigiamo il Master di primo livello in Accessibility to Media, Arts and Culture (AMAC).

Gentilissime,

Il master ha un forte profilo internazionale, dal corpo docente alla didattica. Infatti, tutte le lezioni teoriche sono in lingua inglese, con possibilità di scegliere tra italiano e inglese solo per le sessioni pratiche.

Lo scorso anno abbiamo avuto studenti da Italia, Grecia, Malta e Australia, e ricevuto richieste di informazioni da altre nazioni.

Visto che il master si rivolge a un bacino di studenti internazionale, ci chiedevamo se fosse possibile promuoverlo in qualche modo tramite i canali dell'Area internazionalizzazione della nostra università o se aveste suggerimenti sulla promozione a livello internazionale.

Il bando scade il 15 marzo, ed è disponibile qui: https://studiumanistici.unimc.it/it/didattica/post-lauream/master/AMAC_2023-24

Il sito web del master è <https://masteramac.unimc.it/>

Cordiali saluti,
Gian Maria
